8:00am - 12 Noon Seminar

Workplace conflict and strife is a familiar theme in pop culture, and unfortunately, in many of our lives. Although we will not always like those with whom we work, we can always choose to communicate in a professional fashion that promotes trust and teamwork. This 4-hour seminar provides knowledge and skills to participants who are committed to cultivating trust and teamwork in their workplace. Participants will: describe a workplace that has trust and teamwork, identify and practice communication behaviors that cultivate trust and teamwork, and create a specific goal for applying the behaviors in the workplace.

Objectives:

1. Participants will compare and contrast characteristics of healthy vs. unhealthy workplaces, increasing awareness of their own workplace culture.
2. Participants will identify, comprehend and practice communication behaviors that can cultivate trust and teamwork.
3. Participants will generate a specific goal and plan of action to apply the behaviors in their workplaces, including an analysis of barriers and problem-solving how to overcome resistance.

Don't miss this valuable and fun seminar—Make your reservation today!

Cost: $49 per person pre-registration, $55 after, registration deadline September 30, 2010, fee includes continental breakfast and seminar materials. (Non-refundable)
